At the open-air museum in Stübing, you can wander through Austria from the Burgenland to Vorarlberg regions and get to know the building styles and way of life as well as typical regional tools from the past in idyllic surroundings. It is a world of rural life and work that lives on in a quiet side valley of the Mur in about one hundred original rural buildings from six centuries.

SENSEWERK DEUTSCHFEISTRITZ SCYTHE FACTORY

Before combine harvesters and sickle mowers made the work of farmers much easier, the scythe was one of the most important tools in agriculture. The entire production plant with its six huge water wheels has been preserved as a museum in the former scythe factory. The premises also provide an exciting setting for theatre performances, concerts and art exhibitions.

TIPS FOR HARDY HOLIDAYMAKERS

As everyone knows, there's no such thing as bad weather, only the wrong clothes.

The sun always shines in the Graz Region! Not entirely true, of course, but it is true that the weather gods are often kind to the Styrian capital. It is not for nothing that the city is known for its southern flair. Nevertheless, there is always a chance that the weather may not play ball. Then a varied alternative programme is called for.

More ideas for an entertaining programme if the weather is bad can be found here:
